

FNR LECTURE SERIES IN EUROPEAN AND COMPARATIVE LABOUR LAW
“The Effectiveness of the European Social Model”
Organized by Prof. Ass. Luca Ratti, University of Luxembourg

Friday 13 July 2018 at 12.00
Reflecting on the Effectiveness of EU Anti-Discrimination Law
Professor Mark BELL, Trinity College Dublin

Weicker Building, room B.001 (ground floor)
4, rue Alphonse Weicker - L-2721 Luxembourg

EU anti-discrimination legislation has existed since the 1970s in respect of gender equality and since 2000 for the grounds of racial or ethnic origin, religion or belief, disability, age and sexual orientation. Yet research continues to disclose persistent inequalities in the labour market, such as the gender pay gap. Surveys also indicate that only a minority of people raise a formal complaint if they experience discrimination or harassment at work. This lecture will reflect upon the strengths and limitations of the individual rights model that characterises EU anti-discrimination law. It will consider options for reform of the legal framework in order to enhance its effectiveness.

Registration is free but mandatory. To register: <https://bit.ly/2JLUyN5>
Maximum number of participants: 60 – Lunch is provided for registered guests.

Rescom/2017/11765276

